CONNECTICUT COLLEGE NEWS.

War Call Takes Professor Morris—Student Body Sees Him Off at the Railroad Station.

Few colleges in the country, if any at all, are situated in the whirl of war conditions in which the Connecticut college is situated.

From the college campus, Long Island sound with its fleets of ships, the island forts, the shipyards and shipbuilding plants along the coast, the navy yard and the submarine base with its forceful steady war work stand out prominently as features in the landscape. Amalgams of battleships, yachts, and submarines, in white, blacks, yellows, greens, reds and blues are very evident on the Thames, the white trail of the torpedo in an every day sight, the blast of the island guns in long and short distance practice are common sounds. The changes in a year are hardly believable.

Something of the atmosphere and indeed much of it, has woven itself into the college body and into the gray granite walls which stand serene and placid above and overlooking the wartime preparations and actions. Classes have been regular, work has been diligently attended to, and a deeper sense of duty and service and of seriousness has developed in the college with external changes.

War work has been enthusiastically carried out; bandages have been rolled, motor and wireless courses have been kept up by students in spare moments, sweaters, scarfs, socks and helmets have been knitted by the score, butter, candy and wheat breads have been foregone and each and every student has resolved to fit himself to be of service either in reconstruction work or in present government work if need be.

Working faithfully day by day, the students little realize that the service flag of the college would soon hold a second star, to float from the college on the hill by the sea and that one of the most important department would be without a head.

Although there had been some rumor to the effect that Dr. Frank E. Morris of the psychology department was to enlist, the story had been discredited and the confirmation of the rumor came as a complete surprise to the college body.

Dr. Morris is a graduate of Yale university, 1912, and received a Ph. D. from Yale in 1915. For the past two years he taught in the education department of Texas University and was appointed to the psychological department of Connecticut college in 1917.

Three weeks ago, Dr. Morris applied for enlistment in the psychological department of government work and was accepted. A telegram received Tuesday ordered him to report at Camp Oglethorpe, Ga., on Thursday morning. Leave of absence was granted and Dr. Morris left college on Wednesday for Georgia.

During his stay at the college, Dr. Morris has proved himself a capable, thorough and painstaking instructor, thoroughly acquainted with his subjects and is accredited one of the most efficient as well as the most popular professor in the college body.

During his stay at the college, he has made many friends and it is with deep regret that students and faculty

White Cross Council Preparing to Entertain K. of C. State Convention—James Purdon Installed as Esteemed Leading Knight of Elks—Rebekahs to Present Service Flag to I. O. O. F.

Activity is the keynote in the affairs of White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus at the present time as the members are making elaborate preparations for the reception of the delegates to the annual state convention which is to meet for the first time in Norwich on Tuesday, May 14th. At a meeting of the council held Friday evening the committee of arrangements presented a report of the work which has been done to make the visit of the delegates one of pleasure and the convention of benefit to the order in the state.

The exercises will open with an explanation of the third or major degree of the order on Sunday, May 12th. Monday will be given over to sight-seeing and the delegates will be given an opportunity to see the various points of interest in and around Norwich. On Tuesday, May 14th, prior to the opening of the business session of the convention the delegates will attend a solemn high mass in St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock. Following the convention a dinner will be tendered the delegates at the Wauregan house, at 2.30.

Prior to the transaction of business the great degree of the order was exemplified upon a class of eleven candidates. Eight candidates were elected to membership and four applications for membership were received. The council accepted an invitation from Rev. Joseph Ford of Colchester to participate in the exercises incidental to the dedicating of a service flag, to be held on Sunday, May 19th, and James P. Sheridan, Joseph P. Gidle and Thomas Coffey were appointed a committee to arrange for the council taking part in the exercises. H. D. Buckley, M. J. Curran, A. Deacon, J. D. Pritchard and William B. Harrington were appointed a committee to arrange for an exemplification of the order.

hear of the extended leave of absence granted to one of their midst who has won deserved praise and respect. The psychology department includes psychology, logic, education and philosophy and is a very important department. Definite plans for the continuation of the course, will be announced in a few days.

Passengers on the through train to New York, leaving New London at 2.35, started from their seats in surprise as the train pulled into the New London station. One hundred girls, in gay attire, with flags and banners, filled the depot, singing lustily and with smiling faces. Upon learning that Dr. Frank E. Morris, who has enlisted in the psychological department of medical work at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., was to leave at that time, every student who was not scheduled for a class and many who were scheduled for a class hastily took the car for the station.

College songs, popular war songs and songs made up at the moment were practiced on the car down town and the girls marched down to the station one hundred strong in two straight lines to cheer off the departing professor and whole up the town with their songs and cheers. Gay repartee and cheering was the passport but under cover lay the deep regret that the college was to be deprived of its most popular professor and that the work in psychological courses would be finished without this competent instructor.

The American flag and the class flags were waved until the train was out of sight and another episode of college life was completed.

College "Sing" For May Day.

In accordance with the traditions of the college, the annual May day exercises were held on Wednesday morning at seven o'clock. In spite of the rain and wind, about two hundred students and many members of the faculty gathered on the steps of New London hall to sing the hymn of praise and thanksgiving written by the first president of the college and set to music by Dr. Coe of the music department. Grouped along the gray granite steps overlooking the Thames, and the pleasant landscapes of the farm and the open sea, the students sang heartily with the sense of happy fellowship and love which so marks all gatherings at the college. The Star Spangled Banner and the college song were added to the original programme and were sung as only a group of college girls could sing them.

The custom of singing on May day was the first class of the college and it is hoped that it will always be carried out.

Desiring to make more of the May day exercises, President Marshall has instituted the custom of holding chapel on May morning on the quadrangle between the two dormitories of Plant and Blackstone and facing New London hall. The plan was adopted for the first time on Wednesday morning and was a very impressive ceremony.

The faculty in caps and gowns marched from the gymnasium to the open square, the glee club stood on the bank in back of the faculty and the students grouped around about in a circle. Hymns were sung and prayers offered. Miss Winona Young, the first president of the Student Government Association, read the invocation one written by Dr. F. H. Sykes at the time of the opening of the college. Following the reading, Dr. Marshall read a prayer of Dr. Sykes which was responded to by the students. The Glee club rendered a selection, and America was the final song sung in chorus.

At the next regular meeting on May 15, Mrs. J. and Shetucket lodges are invited to be present as the Rebekahs will present the Odd Fellows with a service flag.

DAUGHTERS OF LIBERTY. Virginia Dale council, No. 25, S. and D. L., at the last meeting in the Halle club rooms in the Chapman building, entertained S. C. Hattie Beckwith of New Haven and Margaret Frost of New London. The council voted to buy a Liberty bond. The state council meets May 21st in South Norwalk. Those attending from here are Mrs. Margaret Hart, who is on the appeal committee, Mrs. Mary Washburn, S. deputy and the delegate, William A. Bacon. Since the last meeting death has entered the council taking a valued member, Mrs. Annie Leonard, whose funeral will be held Sunday. She was a member of the F. B. and has a benefit.

OWLS. The regular meeting of the Norwich lodge of Owls held Tuesday evening in Owls' hall, with a large number in attendance. Thomas Dougherty presided, and routine business was transacted. Plans were made for a whist to be held at the home of the benefit of the Red Cross. The Owls have been doing a large amount of patriotic work and the whist is only one of the many.

EAGLES. The Norwicherie of Eagles have completed their final arrangements for the unfurling of the service flag which will take place at Eagles' hall on Sunday afternoon. There are a large number of the local lodge who have entered the service.

Saybrook.—A big time will be held in the town hall this (Friday) evening at the presentation of two flags, probably three, due to the fact that the committee is striving hard to reach the third quota of $40,000.

ject of Labor Legislation in the War, at the weekly convocation on Tuesday morning.

Having worked on labor legislation and labor problems for the past six years, previous, through college training, Miss Sylvester was well fitted to speak on a subject which is of universal and perplexing interest and spoke in a very interesting as well as instructive manner. One of the most important phases of work which the association is at present undertaking is reconstruction work now and after the war. Several departments of the government have signified the desire to undertake the work but none have any power. The act now before congress, if passed, will sanction a department to undertake the reconstruction work. The man in the hospital must be cheered up, must not be allowed to think that he is a hindrance to his family and a burden on society, but must be re-educated to be able to take up his trade again when able. The situation of ten million men set on the labor market is a factor in reconstruction work and the measures planned to offset an overwhelming supply were outlined as having congress pass a law to keep drafted men in service until places of employment are open to them, or to provide compensation for the unemployed through no fault of their own.
